

Sarah E. Wilson, LMT

Sarah studied massage at the Lauterstein-Conway School of Massage in Austin, Texas, receiving her license in 2005. She worked as a hospice massage therapist at Girling Hospice until they were sold in 2007 and practiced out of a small Cedar Park salon that she co-owned for seven years. Today, she maintains a personal clientele and performs on-site chair and table massage for festivals, community events and businesses. Sarah enjoys working for the Travis County Tax Office for all levels of elections. She has held jobs in photography and concert promotion as well.

Sarah was born and raised in Austin and remains active in the community. Her volunteer experience includes organizations such as Project Transitions' hospice facility; the Austin Rape Crisis Center (predecessor to SafePlace) where she was named volunteer of the month multiple times for her work answering overnight hotline calls and as an emergency room victim's advocate; and Travis and Williamson County Tax and Elections Offices as a Voluntary Deputy Registrar. She has also volunteered over four hundred hours in recent years recruiting and organizing volunteers for various community events.

On a personal note, she enjoys live music, festivals and races. She loves doing crafts, especially with her young niece and nephew. And of course, enjoys spending time with friends, family and pets.
